

Citizens Council Seeking Information Via Online Survey

August 2008

LACONIA: The Belknap County Citizens Council on Children and Families is asking residents of Belknap County to complete a short online survey about juvenile justice services in the county. Over the past several years, the Citizens Council has been working closely with state, county, and local providers of juvenile justice services and interested citizens to bring substantive changes to the programs serving juveniles and their families.

“Input from residents of the County will help this process,” says Alan Robichaud, Council Executive Director.

Robichaud explains the purpose of the survey is to learn from residents of Belknap County what kind of juvenile justice system they would like to have in this county.

This anonymous survey is available on the home page of the Citizens Council website, www.bccj.org. Residents are asked to complete this survey by Monday, September 15th.

“We want everyone to know that their comments will help us in our continued efforts on behalf of children and families in Belknap County,” adds Robichaud.
